Sam Drauschak is the Co-founder and Chief Process Scientist at Truvle, whose mission is to help businesses achieve maximum revenue growth through the principles of process science. He is the author of Becoming A Conscious Business, which details the insights he achieved by studying the efficiency in nature and evolution that determines the survival and growth of species. The Truvle method applies these same principles to business systems to maximize energy flow, eliminate waste, and optimize productivity.

Sam has made a significant impact by creating the Truvle Mapping Language (TML), a widely-accepted universal process mapping language used by many global enterprises.

Sam was proudly featured in the Top 100 Magazine, recognized for his exceptional contributions to process mapping language.
